

Brave New World: Navigating Global Risk - INT300

Monday, 1:45 pm - 3:15 pm

In the absence of a crystal ball, what strategies can companies and brokers use to navigate the fast-changing world of global risk? Multinational experts will discuss the challenges of securing insurance coverage that is truly global. Topics include managing multinational claims; insight into the anatomy of complex claims and the settlement process; insurers' mechanisms to ensure effective coordination across borders; and insight into emerging trends, such as Romania's decision to mandate local directors and officers insurance, which affect insurance-buying decisions. This session will demystify the murkier issues surrounding global risk, provide insight into managing complex global claims and shed light on emerging issues.
