

James P. DeLeeuw
Senior Vice President
National Cargo Practice

As a Senior Vice President for Willis, Jim DeLeeuw is responsible for overseeing the Midwest's Marine Cargo Practice from our Detroit office. His specialty is designing and implementing controlled master programs for international cargo accounts, integrated transit programs (domestic and cross-border transit), Household Goods/Employee Relocation programs and Stock Throughput Programs (STPs). Jim has extensive experience (21 years) working and managing global accounts.

Prior to joining Willis, Jim started the Marine Practice resource unit and served two and a half years as the Marine Practice Leader for Palmer & Cay/Wachovia Insurance Services. Before joining Palmer & Cay, he was the Manager of Marsh's Detroit Marine & Energy Department and was responsible for the department's largest Marine accounts. Jim spent 16 years with Marsh's Detroit office. Under his management, his former offices provided full Marine account services, including cargo claim adjustments and recoveries, to local branch offices spread over numerous states. He has designed insurance programs and claims management systems for a myriad of clients throughout his career.

Jim earned a BA from Wayne State University's College of Business in Detroit.
