

Ann Longmore
Executive Vice President, Executive Risks Account Services
Willis Executive Risks Practice

Ann Longmore brings a rare combination of educational and business credentials to her work as Executive Vice President of Willis' Executive Risks Practice. Her insight and multidimensional approach stem from her JD in Law, an MBA in Finance and an MA in Economics. Based in New York, Ann is a resource for Willis offices in the US and internationally.

Prior to joining Willis, Ann spent 10 years at a large multinational insurance company, where she was Underwriting Manager of the Pension trust Liability Unit in the Management Liability Division and oversaw risks relating to corporate, not-for-profit, multi-employer and public plans, while consulting on international exposures and mergers and acquisitions.

Ann's legal experience includes positions at the Department of Labor's ERISA Enforcement Division, the New York Stock Exchange and the Bankruptcy Court in New York's Eastern District. Prior to entering the insurance industry, she was an Assistant Adjunct Professor of Economics and Finance at Long Island University.

Ann earned her BA/BS and MBA and MA from Long Island University and her JD from Brooklyn Law School.
